MRS. FLEETWOOD'S VISIT TO THE PRESI ENT.-Mrs. Fleetwood, the wife of Majo Fleetwood, the colored National Guarflicer, was at the White House to-day, officer, was at the White House to-day. The object of her visit was to persuade the President not to appoint Saptain Perry to command the consolidated battalion of colored troops, but to make Major Fleetwood its commander. She referred to Major Fleetwood's war record and recalled to the President the remark that he made when the colored delegation saw him recently in regard to the order which General Ordway had issued disbanding the colored troops. The President, it will be remembered, then said that it behooved the colored people to choose Major Fleetwood as their commander. The President promised Mrs. Fleetwood to give the matter his consideration.

STORY OF THE KILLING.

TAULBEE'S COMPANION TELLS HOW HE WAS SHOT BY KINCAID.

The Third Day of the Trial-The Govern ment Opens Its Case With the Testimony of Ex-Doorkeeper Donaldson-What Other Witnesses Saw and Heard.

Judge Bradley came into the Criminal Court promptly on time this morning and was shortly followed by the attorneys and the defendant.

HENRY W. DREWER. a civil engineer living in Georgetown, was the first witness placed on the stand in behalf of the Government. He testified that he had made the diagram of the corridor in the Capitol where the shooting oc curred. Mr. Brewer explained to the jury the diagram that he had made and pointed out the position on the steps in which the two men were supposed to have stood when the fatal shot was fired. SAMUEL DONALDSON was next placed on the stand. He testified as follows: "I have known both Taulbee and Kincaid since 1885, and saw them at the Capitol on February 28, 1880—first at the door of the House and then in the House restaurant. Taulbee and I were together, and I first saw Kincaid about 12:30 o'clock in the corridor, and afterward at the main door of the House of Representatives. Taulbee and I met at the top of the southern steps and he said, "Sam, what do you want?" "Oh, nothing particular," was the answer. Taulbee then took my right arm and we started down the steps. On the landing we saw Judge Kincaid, Kincaid said, "You can see me now," and about the same time there was a flash from a pistol and Taulbee staggered. At the time the two men were about four feet apart. Taulbee put his hand to his head and started down the stairs, and I said to Kincaid, "Don't shoot again."

Taulbee started down the stairs, and Kincaid was the first to follow. At that time there were twenty-five or thirty people in the corridor below.

Some one asked "who shot that man." and Kincaid answered:

"I nin."

"I DID. Taulbee and I separated then and I did Taulbee and I separated then and I did not see him again until I went to his room, half an hour later, with Congressman McMillin of Tennessee. I also visited him several times at the Providence Hospital and was with him on the 11th of March, when he died.

Judge Grosyenor then took up the crossexamination. The witness said: "I am a lawyer, was doorkeeper of the House in the Forty-ninth Congress and afterward kept the House Restaurant. Have acted at times for the Western Union Company and aided in the passage of other bills through Congress."

through Congress."
"Did you ever make a speech before a committee" asked General Grosvenor.
"No sir" was the answer.
"What then did you do," continued the

"What then did you do," continued the General.
"Have I got to answer these questions?" asked the witness of Judge Bradley.
"No, you do not have to reveal the business of your clients," replied the Judge.
"I do not know what I was doing at the Capitol that day and had Juo interest in common with Mr. Taulbee, whom I met in the restnurant with Mr. Bradshaw of Indiana and Mr. Pell of Arkansas. We parted then and I said that I would meet him at the door of the Military Committee room or the telegraph office. There was no business relations existing between us at the time."

us at the time."
"Why, then, were you so anxious to see Taulbee?" questioned General Grosvenor.

The question was objected to by District Attorney Cole, on the ground that it necessitated the revealing of private business that existed between Taulbee and Hoff Judge Wison and General Gro-venor argued that they ought to be al-lowed to ascertain from the witness why he and Tauthee had so many mysterious meetings at the Capitol that day. Judge Bradley sustained the objection, and an exception was noted.

"Did you not their go to the Capitol to prevent Taulbee from making an as-sault on Kincald?" asked General Grosvenor.

"No. sir," replied Mr. Donaldson, "but I was aware that there was trouble brewing between them."

Witness admitted that he was at dinner at the same table with Mrs. Mary A. Mellmore the evening after the shooting.

"Did you not tell her that Taulbee had pulled Kincald's ear and told him to arm

Mellmore the evening after the shooting.

"Did you not tell her that Tanlbee had pulled Kincaid's ear and told him to arm himself?" was the question.

"If I did it was simply heresay," replied the witness.

The witness then continued: "I did not express a wish that Kincaid would be convicted, neither did I make any threats toward him after the shooting. Of course, Taulbee and I had been friendly for some time, but I had no particular feeling toward Kincaid."

Clarence P. Lovell of Boston testified that he was in the Capitol on the day of the sheoting. He said: "I did not know either Kincaid or Taulbee, but knew Thomas Donaidson, and met him on the steps that day. He was with another gentleman, and they were about half way down the steps leading from the upper to the lower corridor. I suppose the gentleman with Donaidson was Mr. Taulbee. They had their arms locked. I heard some one speak, and them their canne the dash and report of a pistol almost simultaneously. I did not hear what was said, and do not know how many people were on the stairway. I heard some one ask: "Who shot that man." A man who I suppose was the defendant rep. 1, "I did; for he insulted me this morning. He then gave himself up to an officer am the man who had been shot was carried into an ante-room.

On cross-examination Mr. Lovell said that his occupation was that of a ship broker and that his acquaintance with Mr. Donaidson had been limited.

"The occurrence," he added, "was a complete surprise to me and I think the location on the step is about as shownon the diagram. My impression is that there were two or three more men on the stairway. I did not see the man when he fired the shot, but saw the pistol in his hand afterward. The hall was rather dark and I could only locate him by the dissh of the revolver.

MRS. GRANT'S MONEY. A Misunderstanding With Her Broker,

Wallace C. Andrews. New York, March 25.—A strange miunderstanding has arisen between Mrs. Seneral Grant and Wallace C. Andrews. General Grant and Wallace C. Andrews, in relation to the investment of $55,000, which Mrs. Grant gave to Mr. Andrews to place for her in Standard Oil Stock. Mrs. Grant has written to John D. Rockefeller, saying that some three years ago she asked Mr. Andrews to invest the money as stated above, but that he replied that he was about to sell his Standard Oil stock and was going into a much bigger thing, and he advised her that there would be a great opportunity for the investment of her money to better advantage.

the investment of her money to better advantage.

The scheme which Mr. Andrews referred to was the New York Steam Heating Company, and Mrs. Grant says she got the impression from her conversation with Mr. Andrews that the Steam Company as its financial backers. On this understanding Mrs. Grant says she gave Andrews her money to invest in the Steam Company.

Andrews her money to invest in the Steam Company.

Mrs. Grant's object in writing to Mr. Rockefeller was to ask him, she said, to please be so good as to change her stock in the Steam Company to Standard Oil stock as she was tired waiting for dividends from the other. Mr. Rockefeller made haste to assure Mrs. Grant that he was powerless in the matter. Mr. Andrews version of the story has not yet been learned. It is quite likely that the misunderstanding between Mrs. Grant and Mr. Andrews may yet be referred to the courts for settlement.

HE GOT A MAFIA LETTER.

Editor Michelangeli of "L'Eco d'Italia" Warned by an Anonymous Correspondent. New York, March 25.—The Italian paper, L'Eco d'Italia, this morning prints a communication which the editor received yesterday, bearing the Hygiea Hotel stamp. It appeared in both English FORTHESS MONROE, VA., 1891. Michelan

Michelangeli;

You had better keep your damned mouth shut. The only cause for indignation is that the populace permitted a single one of your degraded nation to live and contaminate God's earth. For all the miserable, contemptible, thieving people, the Italian race are the very worst, and the sooner they are exterminated the better for the world. You especially so, it will take but very little for the American people to rise in their wrath and wreak necessary justice.

No lady can travel in Italy, even accompanied by father or husband, especially in the cities of Torino and Rome, without the villainous natives leering at and insulting them. You are a mation of born murderers and are below all others in humanity. Let Italy send on her iron-clads. She will never want to try it a second time; and where would your compatriots be in the mean time?

Ean on yel! Keep quiet or New Orleans will be a Plenie to what will occur.

THE SMITHS VINDICATED. Helen and Her Manuna Tell Their Story to a Church Council.

Boston, March 25.—The Smith-French candal was before the members of the South Evangelical Church last night. Mrs. S. D. Smith and her daughter Heien and Harry French were present. At a late hour the niceting was still in progress. Mrs. Smith made a statement denying that her conduct with French was in any way criminal, though she admitted that she had acted indiscreetly. Miss Smith also made a statement denying in detail the statements made by French regarding her relations with him. Mr. French then reiterated his version of the case as already published. Death Among the Crown Princes.
Crown Princes in Western Europe, especially in France, seem to be pursued by a strange fatality. No French King from the days of Louis XIV, to the establishment of the present republic, was succeeded by his son. Louis XIV, lost his son under circumstances that have remained inexplicable to this day. His grandson, the Duke of Bourgoyne, also died during the great despot's reign. Louis XVI, son was overtaken by the same fate. The Duke of Berry, Charles X, son, was murdered by Lauvel. The buke of Reichstad, born to the crown of Napoleon L, died in his early manhood without having worn the royal crown. The son of Louis Philippe the Duke of Jennes and the for person of Louis Philippe, the Duke of Jennes and the Reicherlands lost both his sons by death and left his throne to a 10-year-old girl. Leopold II. of Beigiam has seen two heirs to his throne pass away. The son of the mresent (Yar of Russia died at the age of 22 in Nice.

DIDN'T RECOGNIZE PAPA Laborer Paul Shonebein's Singular

Physical State. New York, March 25 .- A board fell on Laborer Paul Shonebein on West Staty second street yesterday, broke one of his ribs and caused the bone to penetrate his ribs and caused the bone to penetrate his lung. This let the air out of the lungs and into the tissues under the skin, causing a general putfiling out of the skin all over his small, thin body from head to heels, muil he was totally unrecognizable even to his daughters. Yet the doctors think he may get well. Shonebein, in reality, weighs but 120 pounds.

When his two daughters called late last evening he had puffed out so monstronsly that he was unrecognizable. The young women were led into the ward and up to their father's bedwide.

"Why, this is not our papa." exclaimed.

their father's bedside.

"Why, this is not ourpapa!" exclaimed one of them, turning and scanning the patients in the other beds.

"Our papa was a tall, spare man. This is not at all like him," the others joined in, and Dr. Johnson had much difficulty in convincing them that the balloon man on the bed was really their father.

The putling out of Shonebein's skin went on all night long, and to-day there was little semblance of a man in him.

"It is a singular case, indeed," said Dr. Johnson. "A case not often seen, yet true to a pseculiar phenomenon of hospital practice, this is the third of this sort of cases within three weeks."

WICKED LAURA SNOWDEN

SEARCH IN HER LUXURIOUS OUAR TERS DEVELOPS A THING OR TWO.

The Way She Steered Three Pan-Ameri cans of the Late Congress Into Her Toils During Their Visit to Pittsburg-Quite a Sensational Case All 'Round.

Pirrsauno, Pa., March 25.-The detec es have discovered energy of the career of Miss Laura Snowden, the accomplice of Fred Fitzsimmons, the crook and murderer, to stamp her as one of the star adventuresses and blackmailers of the country. A search of her luxuriously fur hished apartments on Cornwall street led o the finding of her diary and letters which are rich in sensational information. The letters showed that she induced a friend in the same line to join in a scheme to entrap and blackmail the dark-skinned members of the Pan-American Congress during their two-days' sojourn in this city in 1889. She coolly used a Pittsburg iron manufacturer to guide at least three of the delegates to her rooms, where in due time she made the unwitting diplomats disgorge a goodly sum or face the disgrace of exposure. How many others she black-mailed on this occasion she will not tell, and her letters don't indicate. Her busi-ness instinct led her to keep a regular list of her victims, with their real names and addresses.

In this list there are not only the names of Pittsburg men prominent in the business community, but politicians and men of affairs of high standing in many of the larger cities clear across the continent Blackmail was her pet game and the mystery is how she so long escaped prison, while all the time maintaining openly her position as stenographer and clerk for the Medical Review. position as stenographer and clerk for the Medical Review.

One of the incidents of yesterday was the visit of a New York man who gave ne other name than "James Smith," and claimed to have come to town to ascertain whether Miss Snowden isn't the woman he married on short notice in the metropolis in December, 1888. He says she ran away from him three months after the welding. From what he learned of her during their acquaintance and has read of the Snowden woman's career, he thinks the two are identical.

It has been learned beyond doubt that Detective Gilkinson's slayer, whose apprehenson is due to Miss Snowden's disclosures, is Frederick C. Fitzsimmons of Brockville, Ont. One more of the Fitzsimmons gang was arrested yesterday at Gilkinson was buried last night. About 5,000 persons viewed his body as it lay in 5,000 persons viewed his body as it lay in state yesterday afternoon in the First Presbyterian Church. Half a dozen detectives acted as pallibearers.

It is learned that the discovery of Fitz-simmons' real character has caused a great sensation at Brockville where his relatives are among the best people. He is a college bred man and has been a wanderer over two continents for over a decade.

He went South to accept a good position not long after graduating, and cloped with a Louisana planter's daughter. The two have led a wild life ever since and now find themselves in jail together. She is considered to be the schemer of the outstand he the executor. He never visited his home until a fortnight ago to secure his inheritance. His brother is now on route to Pittsburg to look after the defense.

Dead-Heading Royalty Pays the Transport Lines as an Advertising Scheme -German Officer Attributes German Successs in the Franco-German War to Superiority of Numbers - A Cool Reception Given the New Foundlanders by Parliament.

LONDON, March 25.—The question asked n Parliament by Mr. Labouchere relative Britain and the Continent for the conveyance of distinguished persons has prought out the interesting fact that no charge whatever is made for such conveyance, but that, on the contrary, the various steamship lines are eager rivals for the honor of conveying royal and princely personages without any charge whatever. It is said that at least one of Queen Victoria's impecunious German ons-in-law has turned a quiet penny by favoring a certain line of boats in his ourneys between England and the Continent, his arrangement, or implied under standing, with the company being that he shall make himself and the Princess as conspicuous as possible during the voyave, thus advertising the steamship lines, A work written by a German officer, Major Kunz, on the campaign of the Austrian marshal, Radetzky, in India, has evoked considerable comment in Berin and Paris. In his introduction Major Kunz says that the victories achieved by the German armies in the campaigns of 1800 and 1870 were mainly due to superior numbers, and he compares this fact with Radetzky's victories won with greatly inferior numbers. The statement about the German victories has been received with unfavorable criticism in Berlin military circles, where, it is claimed the Germans owed their successes to other causes than superiority in the number of troops.

A BIG ARMADA. Delaware River and Bay Filled With Sailing Craft.
Philladelphia, March 25.—Never before have there been so many vessels anchored in the Delaware River and bay. The fleet extends from the Horseshoe Bend to Cape Henlopen, and embraces sailing vessels of all rigs and nationalities as well as barges and tugs and other steam craft without much motive power.

The cause of this detention is the pre-

The cause of this detention is the prevaling easterly and northeasterly winds which have been blowing steadily for nearly two weeks, and have prevented vessels from getting off shore. Any attempt would cause the ressels to drift further away from their destinations or to collide in the narrow portions of the river where they are now anchored.

Captain Bandolph of the tug Thomas Smith, who came up the river and bay yesterday from the capes, reports counting 570 sailing craft at anchor, and there were others. Not only this, but the wind has driven nearly all of the water out of the river and bay, and the greatest amount of care is required in navigation to prevent striking spots which never would be seen under ordinary circumstances.
